Ike Cancels Spy Flights

The summit conference in Paris virtually collapsed today at its first sitting.

These are the developments which plunged the hoped-for peace parley into a crossfire of angry words:

... Khrushchev threatened to walk out unless the U.S. promised there would be no more spy flights over Russia and punished those responsible for the U-2 flight.

. . Eisenhower rejected the ultimatum, but said spy flights had been suspended since the U-2 incident and would not be resumed. . Khrushchev withdrew his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Russia next month.

... Khrushchev proposed the summit be postponed for six to eight months until a new U.S. president has been elected.

• ... British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan appealed to Eisenhower and Khrushchev to let the conference proceed.

... Western foreign ministers were meeting in a desperate attempt to save the talks. No time has been set for a second meeting of the heads of state.

Truce in Europe

tween Europe's Inner Six and Outer Seven has been postponed, at least until the end of this year. this week's decision the leaders of the Common Market have agreed to delay for six months the reductheir internal tariffs and hence their trade discrimination against Britain, six other European nations and the world at large.

A chance of reconciliation beween the two rival trading blocs of Europe has thus been assured, but it may well be the last chance. At any rate, the next six months will be critical not only for the trade of Europe but for the trade of the free world, including Canada.

In the autumn all the world-wide partners of GATT will meet to renegotiate their present tariff contracts on the most-favored-nation Every external tariff so fixed will apply equally to all signa-tories of GATT. But the internal riffs enforced by the Six and the Seven apply within those groups and not necessarily outside them. The problem of Western statesmanship is not to prevent the economic unification of Europe but to prevent either or both European blocs from reducing their imports from the general world market. If they would apply to all the North Atlantic nations

IT WAS COMMONLY SAID DUR-I ing the worst years of inflation that life insurance was a question-able investment for the ordinary man. Like all savings, life insur-ance policies shrank drastically after the war and are being paid these days in about half their former value. Hence many men preferred to put their money into common stocks as a hedge against inflation.

But as Mr. Charles G. Dougherty, vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, observed in a recent speech, common stocks are not foolproof either. (Their owners have some recent reason to agree with this opinion.)

Studying the record of the Dow Jones Industrial Average, Mr. Dougherty notes that there have been eight times in this century average stock prices have fallen by 40 per cent or more. Many of these declines went be-yond 40 per cent, and one, in the great depression, reached 86 per cent. Besides these dramatic fluc-tuations, stock prices often fell by

THE DANGEROUS CLASH BE- GATT partners the tariff reductions imposed internally there would be no problem. But we need not expect that either European bloc will grant tariff concessions to such nations as the United States and Canada without reasonable reciprocity If Canada, for example, is to avoid discrimination against its goods in Europe it must be prepared to give the European exporters reasonable access to the Canadian market. The key question for Canada is whether we are prepared to pay this price, in some tariff reductions, to avoid a loss in our European markets. Certainly cannot hope to avoid that loss otherwise.

The worse danger is a trade war between the European blocs, then an economic and inevitably a politithey got mixed up in cal division in the North Atlantic it has developed an cal division in the North Atlantic community where the bulk of the world's trade is concentrated And can translate Russian world's trade is concentrated. And the best way to forestall this danger is to begin now the creation of a North Atlantic free trade area by a gradual reduction of all tariffs over a period of some years—in other words, an extension of the prina period of some years—in other words, an extension of the principles already applied within the two European blocs and thus the economic unification of all the less than 40 per cent—by some 20 per cent, for example, in 1957. And the market has looked pretty limp in the last four months.

A man holding stocks did not necessarily lose anything when the market fell. If he held his stocks until they rose again he may well have made a handsome profit. But as Mr. Dougherty says, the recovery in stock prices often took some time.

In the eight big declines since 1901, recovery often took many years. In the meantime the investor who had to sell stocks which he had bought before the fall lost some of his money. The abler, or luckier, investor, buying at the low and selling at the high, profited accordingly.

Life insurance, on the other hand, is always paid in full, on the date specified, and even if it is paid in depreciated dollars it is still an attractive investment for the ordinary man. And by no other investment can he buy so much protection for his dependents. That is why for his dependents. That is why insurance has continued to sell in rising volume even during these years of inflation.

FOR FIVE WEEKS, STARTING today, the Salvation Army will call on Greater Victoria residents for funds to carry on its work. The present appeal has no relation to the projected plan to raise money for a housing development in Esquimalt—that program was postponed until next year in deference to the campaign for Victoria Uni-ant of finance—there is a great opportunity in the politics of Canada. The Social Credit Party is looking for a national leader and, up to now, has not found him. It is having so much trouble to find him, indeed, that it has been compelled to postpone its entire timetable.

After losing all its House of Commons seats in the election of 1958, and then its leader, Mr. Solon Low, the Social Credit Party planned a great revival for this summer. A national convention was to meet, choose Mr. Low's successor and lay down a winning platform.

I suppose the gadget will be issued first to spy pilots, who will find it invaluable when they are forced down in Soviet territory.

Struggling out of the woods after abandoning his parachute the pilot comes to a crossroads. An arrow points northwards over a sign which says: "Svredimnsk." All the pilot has to do is place his electronic instrument in front of the word, and instantly it will translate the Russian into English. Similarly with the words on the other signs larly with the words on the other signs

Thus informed, the pilot will know exactly where he is in English, and if he has the rest of his spy kit, he may also be able to transmit this information to his home base.

On the other hand, if the gadget works verbally, it will serve the pilot well when he is confronted by a crowd of muziks, stakhanovites and pazzunts on emerging from the wood.

"Phbra gormozoloskt inhzy!" they ll cry. "Brsstay kraldghts pphystney will cry. geborscht? Bolshoikravats gospodin niet-nietbinski."

And putting the electronic box to his ear, the pilot will hear an immediate translation of the crowd noises and be able to answer, in English at any rate:
"No, sorry, I haven't any gum. No,
sorry, I can't take you all to America

But an even wider use may be found for the gadget if it is developed a little further and is able to translate not only the Russian speaker's words but also his

Thus Mr. Khrushchev's remarks sure fumbled the ball that time, and right into my quarterback's hands, too. If they just don't uncover my boys at Detroit, Canaveral, Los Alamos and Aklavik until this blows over I'll be very thankful."

And when the Soviet leader demands, in Russian, that the West remove its forces from Europe, the English version of this will again be translated by the electronic box to read: "Of course, fel-lows, you realize I'm just kidding about this. You take your troops out of Europe and my satellites will get so despondent they may rise and chuck me out too."

And especially when Mr. Khrushchev is hurling epithets in Red Square, hoping they'll be heard in Washington Square and Grosvenor Square, the double translator will be useful.

Regarding the current controversy over drug prices, an article in a recent issue of a reputable medical publication, after discussing the cost of drugs in terms of research and product develop-ment, quality control, advertising and retail costs, makes this concluding general statement:

"It maybe concluded that the widely used term 'the high cost of drugs' should in fact be 'the low cost of drugs.' When measured against reduced periods of hospitalization, re-duced periods of work loss and re-duced costs of over-all health care, it is evident that the low cost of illnes

Publishing is an Unspeakable Torture How Castro Controls the Cuban Press:

By DR. GUILLERMO MARTINEZ MARQUEZ

(Former Editor of El Pais, Havana) THE status of the Cuban press is the most complex and intolerable in the history of our hemisphere. There is no official censorship and the government asserts that editors are free to publish whatever they see fit. But the exercise of that right is so fenced in with acts of coercion and dangers, which are so numerous and persistent, that publishing is an unspeakable torture.

In order to exercise his rights an editor must become a hero, if not a

To begin with, there is the official competition. The top news stories, the most important decrees, and official statements which influence national life, appear exclusively in the newspaper

One example, among many others, was the exclusive publication by Revo-lucion of the Agrarian Reform Law, even before it appeared in the Official Cazette. The prime minister and his principal collaborators go to the news-room of the Revolucion personally to issue far-reaching statements of policy. But this is only one of the obstacles placed in the way of the few independent newspapers still appearing in Cuba. Any newspaperman who differs with the prime minister or one of his collaborafors is immediately insulted by the Gov ernment press; threats are made against his property and frequently against his

In each newspaper there is a committee of employees. In compliance with, a resolution of the Union of Graphic Arts and the Collegium (Guild) of newspapermen, they add disclaimer foot-notes to any story or editorial they con-sider unfavorable to the Government.

The disclaimer states that the story is untruthful and unethical and part of a counter-revolutionary plot.

The bundles of newspapers opposed to the Government are held up, so that agents in the interior often receive them hours late; sometimes they disappear to subscribers warning them not to read certain newspapers. On certain occasions-advertisers have been pressured into refusing to advertise in newspapers critical of the government.

The Government delays inordinately requests for foreign exchange to pay for newspaper services or supplies.

As if all this were not enough, employees have formed militias—a sort of Projan Horse operation—in newspapers. They wear uniforms and bear arms, so that they are a constant threat within the newspapers themselves. .

I have not heard of such infamy and coercion in the history of the free press in any other country. At least we are not aware of any similar situation. The majority of newspapers in the provinces is under the control of the government. Of the seven television channels in operation January 1, 1959. only one preserves a relative degree of independence. This is channel 6, owned by the Mestre brothers.

But recently, because of a campaign On occasions circulars have been sent against communism started by one of seized by the government. Certain Radio stations are all controlled by the government. They must all broad cast official programs, regardless of private contracts for their time. They are not paid for the official broadcasts.

As for the newspapers of the city of Havana, the panorama is really a desolate one. January 1, 1959, 15 papers were appearing in Havana. Of these only five continue publishing; five have disappeared and the remaining five have gone over to government service.

The five newspapers which are pubeach day becomes more precarious, are:

The five newspapers whose names have been changed or which have been seized by the government are: Alerta, in whose plant the semi-official organ Revolucion is now printed; Pueblo, where La Calle appears; Ataja, whose installations are used to edit Combate, organ of the Directorio Revolucionario: El Mundo, which keeps its old name but is now government property as a result of the confiscation of the properties of the former owner, Mr. Amadeo Barletta; and Avance, which is run as a co-operative of the newpaper's employees. It can be safely said that Diario de la Marina is the newspaper that is most openly opposed to the government of Prime Minister Castro and it is therefore the newspaper that is most frequently attacked, insulted and threatened.

On several occasions fanatic support ers of the Government in cities of interior have organized public burnings of copies of Diano de la Marina, Prensa Libre, and El Crisol, as well as of the North American magazines Time and Life. Symbolic "burials" of these publi-

"BIG GUESS"

Archbishop Harold Sexton has indicated a new archbishop's residence will be needed in Victoria when his successor takes office.

But he gave no indication when this would be.

The present building at 912 Vancouver Street "is much older than it appears," the archbishop told the Diocesan Anglican Synod meeting here.

"Had it not been for the extensive renovation and repairs which were carried out in 1937, without any expense to the Synod, it is doubtful whether the house would be habitable today." he said.

The archbishop added that his residence "with a little reflovation here and there, and so me occasional painting, should tast for the duration of my episcopate.

"I have become rather attached to it, and its garden is a source of never-ending joy."

The archbishop celabrates the 25th anniversary of his consecration as Bishop of Columbia on June 29.

Thrill a Pretty Graduate With a Sparkling Tiara! By PENNY SAVER

Graduation time will soon be here. If you have a daughter in Grade 12 it's pretty safe to bet that she's already planning her outfit for the graduation dance. She'll look like a princess wearing a dainty rhinestone tiara I saw this week. These are the epitome of good taste, and come in a variety of designs. Prices range anywhere from $3.50 to $10.

Two tiaras, selling at $5, are especially attractive. One features a sun ray design while the other is centred with a tiny crown. All have comb grips at each end of narrow band. Your pretty graduate will be able to dance to her heart's content without worrying whether her "crowning glory" will look anything but perfect.

Daughters and style-conscious mothers will love flattering plaughters and style-conscious momers will love naturing glamor bonnets that have arrived in one downtown store. Bonnets are in either black or white floral patterned lace and have grosgrain ties. Scalloped edges of bonnet will frame your face and give a soft feminine touch when you're stepping out to an evening of fun.

There's no need, now, to wonder how to keep your special bairds intact when rain or wind threaten just pop on your hair do intact when rain or wind threaten, just pop on your bonnet and arrive at the party pretty and protected! Bonnets are priced at $1.95.

Whimsies, popular with many Victoria women for cocktail parties and "dress-up" affairs, have now moved into the suit and afternoon dress scene. Ones I've seen are in straw with wisps of complementing veiling to lift them out of the conventional bracket.

Whimsie hats come in two styles. First, featuring a large two-loop bow, sells for $1.95. Other, in smartly designed bands, is priced at $3.95. Color range includes white, green, blue hear measures back and are large measures. bands, is priced at $3.95. Color rai blue, beige, mauve, black and pink.

Gino Silvi Singers Featured on Hit Parade at 9.30 on 6, 2

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor THE THANK-SINATRA SHOW-

Where did Elvis sideburns go? A question of allegory— They went up into his pompadou Now everything's hunky dory.

Did I detect something new in the post army Elvis Presley, during his return-to-civilian-life debut aboard the Frank Sinatra show Thursday night? I think I did. Or at least I like to think I did.

Now I easily could be wrong but I thought I detected a maturity that was not evident before. Sure. he kids the teenagers as of yore with his sad, houn dog yes, his incomparable pelvis and its Minnie-the moocherings. But unless I miss my guess he kids himself not. He knows himself for what he is and can laugh at what he sees.

If this be true then more power to Elvis. Let the tise and Tenon joints, at the abbatoir, let them swoon, let hysteria hold sway even as their mothers swooned and palpitated for even as their mothers swooned and paintated for Rudy Vallee and yes and for the self-same Sinatra.

Rudy Vallee and yes and for the self-same Sinatra.

For so long as they swoon and squeal they'll buy Elvis Presley records and jam the arenas to see Elvis Presley records and jam the arenas to see Elvis in person. And that's showbusiness, man. What's more it's good business. It's money in the bank.

BUT GLORY, GLORY BE, Elvis was travelling in BUT GLORY GLORY BE, Elvis was travelling in fast company, faster than his army jeep ever travelled. First of all there was some competition offered by a pint-sized load of nuclear fission called Sammy Davis, Jr. And what competition. He can sing, imitate, dance, act—you name it, Sammy's got it. Then there was a basher. And let's not forget mine host, Sinatra himself.

This was the actor-singer-director's fourth and final when you see these show of the season and, in retrospect, I think it can be safely said that all of them added together makes his one of the most satisfying variety shows of the 1959-60

The summit conference in Paris virtually collapsed today at its first sitting.

These are the developments which plunged the hoped-for peace parley into a crossfire of angry words:

... Khrushchev threatened to walk out unless the U.S. promised there would be no more spy flights over Russia and punished those responsible for the U-2 flight.

... Eisenhower rejected the ultimatum, but said spy flights had been suspended since the U-2 incident and would not be resumed.

• . . . Khrushchev withdrew his invitation to Eisenhower to visit Russia next month.

 ... Khrushchev proposed the summit be postponed for six to eight months until a new U.S. president has been elected. • ... British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan appealed to Eisenhower and Khrushchev to let the conference proceed.

• ... Western foreign ministers were meeting in a desperate attempt to save the talks. No time has been set for a second meeting of the heads of state.

PARIS—The summit conference collapsed in its first session today, with Russia and the United States accusing each other of torpedo-ing the historic session called in an effort to ease world tensions.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain ap-pealed to the heads of government to proceed with their work at the summit.

The meeting floundered over the U-2 spy plane incident and no further meetings were scheduled.

Russia protested today that an unidentified plane flying in from West Germany violated air space of Communist East Germany May 5. (A Western spokesman said the plane was a small French tourist aircraft that strayed across the Iron Curtain.)

The spokesman said the incident was routine and the French representative at the four-power air safety centre in Berlin had apologized to Soviet authorities.
